

ABOUT HALEY

Haley is a passionate educator who believes that all students are capable of successful learning! Her passion for teaching developed at a young age while living around the world and learning from many different cultures. Haley attended the University of Miami and received degrees in Elementary Education and Special Education with Summa Cum Laude honors. Additionally, she received endorsements in Reading and TESOL, and double majored in Spanish.

After this, Haley went on to study within the Literacy Specialist Master's Program at Columbia University Teachers College. While at Teachers College, she worked as Literacy Specialist fellow and assisted faculty with professional development on various literacy topics. During this time, she interned at PS 158, a public elementary school on the Upper East Side, where she then went on to become a Head Teacher after graduation.

Throughout her career, Haley has been tutoring students ranging from grades 2 to 12, as well as the college level. Along with her literacy degree, Haley specializes in supporting students with mathematics. She was hired by the University of Miami to tutor students at the University in mathematics. In recent years she has supported elementary, middle school, and high school students with their mathematical success. Additionally, Haley has tutored students in preparation for the Hunter College High School Exam.
